* Documents acquired by ERIC include many informal unpublished materials not available from other sources. ERIC makes every effort to obtain the best copy available. Nevertheless, items of marginal reproducibility are often encountered and this affects the quality of the microfiche and hardcopy reproductions ERIC makes available via the ERIC Document Reproduction Service (EDRS). EDRS is not responsible for the quality of the original document. Reproductions supplied by EDRS are the best that can be made from the original. *

PREFACE

The following bibliography includes the books, films, filmstrips, recordings and booklets available for temporary use at no cost, except for return postage, through the Midwest Center for Equal Educational Opportunity (MCEEO), Columbia, Missouri.

HOW TO USE THE BIBLIOGRAPHY:

Included in each entry are the following items: name of author, editor, or compiler; title; publisher; purchase price; source reference number; description of material; level of use.

For the sake of convenience, and because many similar bibliographies do not include the source of the materials listed, we have included, at the end of the bibliography, a numbered list of names and addresses of the sources where materials may be purchased. Numbers on this list correspond to the source reference numbers immediately to the right of purchase prices given with each entry. All purchase inquiries and request should be directed to the appropriate address(es) from this list.

Levels of use are indicated through the use of lower case characters for areas of possible use and with upper case characters for areas of most effective use. For example, 'junior high' indicates a possible level of use, while 'JUNIOR HIGH' indicates a definite level of use.

HOW TO BORROW MATERIALS LISTED:

All requests for temporary use of materials included in this bibliography should be directed to the address below. Please indicate first and second choices and dates of use. Because of the high demand for films, the lending period for films will be three (3) days. It is therefore necessary that the showing date be established well in advance of the order. All other materials may be kept two (2) weeks. If additional time is desired for materials other than films at the end of the two-week period, an extension may be requested. Any intervening request for the material from another person or group will have preference, however.

MCEEO will pay one-way postage and insurance only. Return postage and insurance must be paid by the borrower. Materials may be returned to MCEEO through the library mail rate of $0.06 for the first pound and $0.03 for each additional pound. Insurance is required and is in addition to postage rates.

Because the MCEEO Resource Center is continually growing and looking for new sources of materials, we would appreciate being informed of any materials not included here which would be important additions. Please share your knowledge with us. The bibliography is revised quarterly.

Printing costs prohibit MCEEO from making numerous copies of this bibliography available, so please feel free to duplicate it. We encourage its wide distribution.

Requests for materials and information about additional materials not included in this list may be directed to:

Black Music In America: From Then Till Now

1971, Learning Corporation of America, Minutes (29), $350.00 58

From the spiritual refuge of a subjected people to a dominant force in contemporary world culture, the music of America's Black people is chronicled. Filmclips of some of the country's greatest performers, from the legendary Billie Holiday to Sly and The Family Stone, and including the only film record of Bessie Smith, convey the power and unique expressiveness of Black music. Shown are excerpted performances by Louis Armstrong, Nina Simone, Mahalia Jackson, Count Basie and Duke Ellington, among others. The various forms that Black music has taken in America -- the spiritual, the protest song, jazz, blues, swing, rock'n roll -- are analyzed and illustrated. Old engravings and drawings put the music into the historical framework of Black people's life in the United States, from the arrival of the first slave ship in 1619. Black music is traced through its complex evolution from African dance rhythms to the myriad sounds of today.

Charley Squash Goes To Town

1970, Learning Corporation of America, Minutes (5), $100.00 58

Created by Duke Redbird, a Cree Indian from Orillia, Ontario, this cleverly animated film is an excellent inside view of the nature of a real-life identity crisis. Charley Squash is an Indian with a problem. Should he follow the urgings of his white friends and do well in school, succeed in business, and give up his Indian identity? Or should Charley Squash give up his success in the white world, listen to his Indian friends and family, return to the reservation and learn to be an Indian again? Charley's question is simple: isn't there a third alternative, an alternative which would allow him to do what he wants to do, and not what everyone else thinks he should do? Charley chooses a third alternative: he goes back to the old fishing hole so that he can be himself again.

Children Without

1967, National Education Association, Minutes (30), $35.00 67

Too many children in American cities are without parental love and care, without the basic prerequisites of daily living, without the many experiences which help them develop their potentialities. The film takes the viewer into a Detroit Public School, where teachers and counselors establish warm relationships which such children need and provide positive learning experiences for them.

Felipa: North Of The Border

1971, Learning Corporation of America, Minutes (17), $210.00 58

A driver's license creates a bond between a young Mexican-American girl and her uncle, who, like many Americans of minority groups, find that "life is more difficult for some than for others." Felipa's uncle has injured his back working as a crop picker in the fields of Arizona; his chance to get a new job as a truck driver depends on his learning English and passing a driver's test. Felipa, who is bilingual and has dreams of becoming a teacher, determines to teach him herself. Day after day the two work hard on his lessons. The day of the test arrives. Nervous and intimidated, Uncle José fails -- but Felipa refuses to accept the verdict as final. The second chance she obtains for her uncle results in a day of triumph for the whole family.

Freedom River Narrated by Orson Welles

1971, Stephen Bosustow Producation, Minutes (8), $130.00 86

Concentrating on an area of growing concern in our society -- the difference that makes people blind to the injustices around them -- this animated parable traces how the erosion of freedom, like the pollution of natural resources, can occur so gradually that both evade the attention of a busy and preoccupied nation. The ways this apathy grows and what to do about its pervasive effect is the challenge presented by FREEDOM RIVER.

Geronimo Jones

1970, Learning Corporation of America, Minutes (21), $240.00 58

Geronimo Jones is a young Indian boy living on a Papago reservation in Arizona and searching for his own identity in American society. His grandfather, a descendant of the great Apache chief Geronimo, tells the boy stories of the Indian's past greatness and one morning hands down to him a treasured Apache medallion. Visiting town after school, Geronimo is persuaded by a storeowner to trade his medallion for a television set for his grandfather. When the set is turned on to a western, rifle shots fill the air, and Geronimo and his grandfather watch Indians, as "the enemy," being mowed down in the name of civilization. The grandfather looks away in grief, and Geronimo wanders outside, shaken and bewildered. Now without his medallion, uncertain of his heritage and his future, he still is eager for life and goes off to look at the moon with his astronomer cousin.

I Am Joaquin

1970, Commission for Mexican American Affairs, Minutes (20), $375.00 22

"I am Joaquin" was the first work of poetry (now in film version) to be published by Chicanos for Chicanos, and is the forerunner of the Chicano cultural renaissance...the sounds of movement, the literary and anthropological quest for our roots, the renewal of a fierce pride and tribal unity, are the reasons why I Am Joaquin had to be shared with all my hermanos y hermanas, fathers, mothers, and grandparents. Their time and now our time, could not be left behind and forgotten! Rodolfo Gonzales

Is It Always Right To Be Right? Narrated by Orson Welles

1970, Stephen Bosustow Productions, Minutes (8), $130.00 86

"There once was a land where men were always right" -- So begins this fast-moving parable that highlights the centers of divisiveness in our society -- the generation gap, war, poverty, race. Stressing the need for our complex age to establish a "spirit of interdependence," the film will provoke lively discussion without alienating any group. Winner of Academy Award; EFLA Blue Ribbon; CHRIS Award;

Matthew Aliuk: Eskimo In Two Worlds

1973, Learning Corporation of America, Minutes (18), $230.00 59

A boy from an Alaskan Eskimo family makes a sacrifice for an uncle who has found it impossible to assimilate into the life of present day Anchorage. Matthew's uncle Isak has left his village in the North and his known life as a hunter of seal and caribou because of the promise of good jobs in Anchorage. He has found a construction job, and has been living with Matthew and his parents, longtime city residents. Matthew enjoys spending time with his uncle, who teaches him Eskimo customs and gives him a sense of his people's traditions. Most of Matthew's spare time is spent, however, training his team of huskies for an important race, and with his uncle's help, preparing the sled and other equipment. Suddenly, his uncle Isak loses his job because his sense of time and his habit of stopping to help others don't coincide with the expectations of American business. The only other job he can find is cleaning up a gas station, and he decides to go back to his village. With a great sense of conflict, Matthew gives up his team of dogs so that his uncle can make the trip home and resume his life as a hunter.

The American Indian Influence on the United States

1972, Dana Productions, Minutes (20), $295.00 25

This film depicts how life in the United States today has been influenced by the American Indian - economically, sociologically, philosophically. and culturally. We follow the Indian trails which have become the major highways to various sections of the United States, where we feature nine dances and ceremonies. These live action dances integrated with graphics - ranging from original Indian illustrations to historical photographs and paintings - are filmed with the animation camera to emphasize the various facts and contributions that are Indian. As we follow the Indian trails throughout the United States, some of the people seen and discussed are the Pueblo Indians and the Spanish, Chief Massasoit and the Pilgrims, Hiawatha, Sitting Bull, General Custer, Buffalo Bill, President Jackson, Sequoyah, Will Rogers, Jim Thorpe, and Buffy St. Marie.

The Giving Tree

1972, Stephen Bosustow Productions,Minutes (10), $140.00 86

This poignant story about the relationship between a boy and a tree illustrates some truths about the meaning of giving, receiving and love. The tree unselfishly offers itself to the boy for climbing, for shade and for pleasure. But as the boy grows up, he wants different things from the tree -- money from its apples and lumber from its limbs. The boy's life takes him farther and farther from the tree. But old age brings their relationship full circle. The ending fittingly demonstrates that giving does not necessarily mean receiving.

The Mexican-American Speaks: Heritage In Bronze

1974, Encylopaedia Britannica, Minutes (20), $232.50 36

Although the Spanish speaking communities of the U.S. differ in origin, they share a common heritage and present aims. Focusing upon the largest group - Mexican-Americans - the film traces the conquest of the Indians by Spanish conquistadors and the spread of Spanish dominion in the New World. The rule of Spain disappeared, but the heritage of language and of mixed blood and culture remained. Present-day "Latinos" - represented in the film by cross-section of Spanish speaking citizens - are now proudly demanding a greater voice in government, education, and the economic life of the nation.

The Prejudice Film

1972, Motivational Media, Minutes (28 1/2), $342.00 63

The historical origins and contemporary forms of prejudice in our society are examined. Emphasis is on the individual's role in contributing to or helping to eradicate the attitudes which result in discrimination and other injustices. Patterns of racial, ethnic, religious prejudice (as well as that against other minorities or groups of people) are explored logically without prejudice. A series of vignettes demonstrates some of the daily events, typical comments, and attitudes which perpetuate prejudice and discrimination. Viewers will recognize the relationship between the seemingly "harmless" joke and the ultimate manifestation of prejudice -- violence or even genocide. Produced and directed by Max Miller, Avanti Film, Inc., and narrated by David Hartman.

The Tenement

1967, Anti-Defamation League, Minutes (40), $240.00 9

Nine families in a ghetto tenement, the kind of people who do not carry picket signs or march on Washington, are the subjects of this CBS REPORTS documentary filmed over an eight-month period on Chicago's South Side. Some of the tenement residents talk of their dreams of a "richer, sweeter life out there, beyond reach, beyond hope." Others exhibit a fierce nobility as they struggle to maintain a sense of pride and accomplishment. And a few talk of how they tried to brave the world, failed, and gave up.

Todd: Growing Up In Appalachia

1971, Learning Corporation of America, Minutes (13), $195.00 58

As a youngster growing up in Appalachia, Todd is faced with the daily reality of poverty. His father is out of work now that the mines have closed, and the family lives primarily on beans and potatoes, which they buy with government-supplied food stamps. On his way to school one day, Todd finds a wallet full of food stamps that someone has dropped. A woman's name identifies the owner. Todd could return the stamps to her, but he is tempted by the unhoped chance to buy all kinds of food. He goes to the grocery store after school and fills his basket with things he has only dreamt of tasting. However, as he watches other families making their pitifully small purchases, he hesitates. Aware of what the lost stamps mean to their owner, Todd walks through the ravaged hollows of Appalachia to return them. Then he goes home -- for a dinner of beans and potatoes.

Two Indians: Red Reflections of Life

1973, Centron Educational Films, Minutes (25 1/2), $340.00 20

The film was produced to expose the thoughts and the creativeness of two young Indian men of the 1970's, Mark Romancito, Zuni Tribe of New Mexico and Richard Wittman, Yuchi Tribe of Oklahoma, as they find themselves and their personal identities in their art work, (Mark: ceramics and dance; Richard: painting). Their activities grow out of the education program at the Institute of American Indian Arts in Sante Fe, New Mexico, which builds its program on the uses of the cultural differences of Native American community cultural groups, as the basis for personal creative expression.

William: From Georgia To Harlem

1971, Learning Corporation of America, Minutes (16), $195.00 58

Ten-year old Willie is the "new boy in the neighborhood" -- just arrived in Harlem from a farm in Georgia. His New York cousin, Calvin, is everything Willie isn't -- cool, city-bred, hip. In Calvin's eyes, Willie is a total embarrassment; he can't catch a ball, tends to be nice to girls, and gets scared running over rooftops. But when Calvin's best friend is beat up by neighborhood bullies, it is Willie, the new boy, the "uncool" kid -- and not Calvin -- who comes to the friend's rescue. At the end of the film Willie is bruised, but a little wiser about life in New York. Above all, he has won the friendship and respect of his cousin Calvin by behaving decently and courageously.

Relocation of Japanese-Americans

(No date available), Documentary Photo Aids $32.00 28
(2 color filmstrips, 2 L.P. records, 15 prints, teacher's manual)

In 1942, 110,000 U.S. citizens were driven out of their homes and sent to concentration camps in the most remote sections of the Western United States. No specific charges had been made against them and no hearings were held. Why did America suddenly suspend the civil liberties of its own people in this harsh manner? Was it because of the Japanese racism which had smoldered since the turn of the century? This Fenger-D.P.A. charts this historical event from the Executive Order to the expulsion of the Japanese-Americans to the "relocation" centers.

The Nazi Holocaust-Genocide

(No date available), Documentary Photo Aids $12.00 28
(Twenty 11 x 14 prints and teacher's guide)

In more than two thousand years, no crime has equalled the Nazi bestiality. The International War Crimes Tribunal had to invent a name for the mass murder of eleven million people: GENOCIDE! Rudolph Hess, Commandant of the Auschwitz concentration camp, admitted that in his camp 3,000,000 prisoners were exterminated by December 1,1943. The story of the Nazi murder machine can deepen awareness and serves as a warning that if history forgets this event, it could occur again. Pictures include: German soldiers and civilians, the Warsaw ghetto, mass burials, Dachau, Auschwitz and other concentration camps, etc.

Conquest: Manifest Destiny and Mexican Land

1972, Xerox $0.50 90

The Mexican War of 1846-48 was one of America's most controversial military adventures. President Polk decided to declare war on Mexico in order to acquire land, a move widely believed to be a fulfillment of the "Manifest Destiny" of the United States. Yet there was opposition every step of the way: in Congress, in the press, and from leading writers. A vocal minority, with conflicting values, raised questions that troubled decision makers in 1846. Similar questions persist today with America's involvement in Southeast Asia and other parts of the globe.

Mexican-Americans Today: In Search of Opportunity

1973, Xerox $0.50 90

There are about 7 million Mexican-Americans in the U.S. today, and they are not all alike. They are made up of several races and cultures. However, as a group, they face common problems including the problem of maintaining, in an Anglo society, an identity that is uniquely their own. At the same time, Mexican-Americans face a lack of understanding and sometimes open prejudice from the white majority population. This unit book is devoted to helping students understand the problems and the challenges facing Mexican-Americans today. Are they Americans first and above all? Are they part Mexican and part American? Are they individuals first and citizens next? How do their problems differ from those of Blacks, Asians, or American Indians? This is an important and fascinating book for all American students.

Clarke, Edward H. (M.D.)

Sex In Education Or A Fair Chance For The Girls

1972, Arno Press Inc. $8.00   10

This book first published in 1873 has some similarities to recent books written on women. Clarke not only provides a broad definition of education, that which comprises all aspects of life, but furthermore, considers men and women to be equals but not the same. Here is where similarity ends. Clarke proposes that womens' education should be distinct from mens' in how they learn and not what they learn. He claims a feminine orientation should be implemented in womens' education. "Educate a man for manhood, a woman for womanhood, both for humanity."

Race Awareness In Young Children

1952, Collier Books (Macmillian Publishing Co.) $1.50 3

A fundamental research contribution, this readable book tells us much of what we need to know in guiding young children away from the paths of prejudice. The meaning of color dawns upon us as soon as we are ready to recognize other physical attributes. Goodman shows how this process begins, through studies of 104 four-year-old nursery school children in a large northeastern city. It reveals that even four-year-olds - particularly white ones - show unmistakable signs of racial prejudice.

1972, New American Library $1.25 71

This book avoids a singular perspective in that it is written from both Mexican and Anglo points of view and considers four basic questions:

a. Who is this discontented American seen as a threat to Anglo society?
b. What has the Chicano done to achieve national attention?
c. Why has the Chicano moved from apathy to violent action?
d. How does the Chicano intend to change that society?
